

Hold Harmless Agreement for Display and Sale of a Work of Art at the North Haven Art Association (NHAA) Show August 2013

Works of art, crafts, or other objects displayed for sale in the Art Association August show will receive the same degree of care and preservation and protection given to objects owned by the Association, but the NHAA can assume no responsibility for loss or damage by fire, theft, or malicious mischief or other causes while the exhibited works are in the possession of the Art Association.

The below named exhibitor specifically agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the NHAA and its directors, officers, agents, employees, and volunteers from and against all claims, actions, losses, damages, or liabilities arising from the loan of art to the NHAA. The lender understands that the intention to indemnify and hold harmless the NHAA shall include attorney fees and expenses in enforcing this agreement.

Those displaying works of art or crafts in the NHAA annual exhibit specifically understand that the basic insurance on its property carried by NHAA does NOT cover works exhibited in the show. They further clearly understand that the NHAA does not have a monitored security system. Exhibitors may consider the purchase of their own event insurance.

The named exhibitor of the works of art or crafts listed on the attached sheet agrees to promptly remove his/her goods and effects at the conclusion of the exhibit unless otherwise stipulated and signed by both parties.

The NHAA will not grant permission to others to photograph or copy works on exhibition. NHAA may photograph pieces in the exhibit for purposes of publicity or public relations benefitting the NHAA, or for archival purposes.

The list of works exhibited is attached and initialed by both parties.

Any additional stipulations must be signed by both parties to be applicable.

North Haven Art Association By: _____

Owner of Art or Crafts on Exhibit: _____

Date: _____

Please note that each artist or craftsperson must sign this agreement in order to participate in the 2013 show and sale.